

Accessible Tech Users' Network (ATUN)

Hosted by  AceCentre

Its important users are the heart of developments in the field of Assistive Technology

Both at Ace centre and beyond

We want to create a group which gives you a voice

To impact developments in the field with companies and researchers

We want it to be useful to you - and reward you for your input

We want you to run the group and direct its governance. Ace centre will facilitate this

We will facilitate discussion, set face to face meetings with others and the AT community

Get in touch if you want to be a part of this discussion

Whats it all about?

Accessible Tech Users' Network (ATUN) is the working name of a unique user group. We want others in the industry to value your input to the field and create a forum to benefit you for this input, either financially or by learning news and information that's valuable to you.

What does it look like?

We'd like for you to define what the group looks like. Right now, we aim to have a couple of physical meetings a year (with remote if you can't make it), an online (email and web) discussion forum between users and AT professionals and - if you are willing to share your consent to do so - you occasionally may be asked to take part in activities with third parties like academic groups and commercial companies to test new equipment.

We aim to compensate you for your time and experience and ask others to do the same.

What kinds of activities are planned?

As well as the physical meetings and online discussions, we aim to provide opportunities to be involved in shaping important issues and priorities that we focus on in assistive technology, all stages of new product development, evaluate new equipment, and help to co-produce new specialised and local services.

What do I have to do right now?

Just let us know if you are interested. You can either fill in a form yourself, or we could organise a time to help you do this together. Contact Will at wwade@acecentre.org.uk
